

2019 NAR Annual in Review

More than 150 Nevada REALTORS® members made the trek to the Bay Area last week to attend the National Association of REALTORS® Conference and Expo. The event kicked off at San Francisco’s Moscone Center last Thursday (Nov. 7) and continued through the weekend with governance meetings, industry-specific classes and presentations and wrapped up Monday with its annual fall Board of Directors meeting.

Forty-three NVR members served on a variety of NAR committees in 2019. Those committees ranged from Consumer Communications and Insurance to Finance and MLS, as well as everything in between. Those committees wrapped up their 2019 work with end-of-the year meetings in recent days. Another highlight of the event was the installation gala of 2020 NAR President Vince Malta. During the ceremony Nevada REALTORS® 2016 President Dave R. Tina was installed as the 2020 Region XI RVP.

NVR hosted its Nevada Nite Out dinner on Nov. 8 at the “Top of the Mark,” honoring state members attending the conference and volunteering their time to serve the association. At Sunday’s state caucus, NVR members who served on NAR committees gave reports on their committee work. The state caucus meeting was followed up by the Region XI caucus.

“I couldn’t be prouder of our hard-working state members who volunteer their time away from their day-to-day business, to serve the state and national association,” 2019 NVR President Keith Lynam said. “It’s exciting to see so many of our members engaged in the industry and giving of themselves to make it better. NAR’s annual conference always proves to be a great place for our members to shine and show their colleagues across the country how Nevada continues to be an industry leader.”
